1. Outline progress over the last 6 months (April – September) against the agreed project implementation timetable (if your project started less than 6 months ago, please report on the period since start up to end of September).

Although we are not looking for specific reporting against your indicators, please use this opportunity to consider the appropriateness of your monitoring, evaluation and learning (MEL) systems (are your indicators still relevant, can you report against any Standard Indicators, do your assumptions still hold true?). The guidance can be found on the resources page of the relevant fund website.

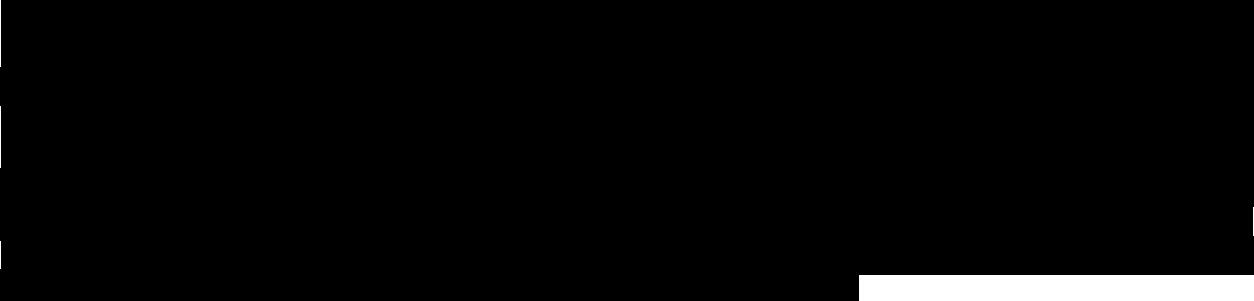

All activities set for the third half year have been completed duly and those started during the previous semesters and planned over several quarters are in progress.

For Output 2, which focuses on livelihoods protection, the project team organized training sessions with villagers in the second cohort of villages on seed sowing techniques. Villagers were selected gender-neutrally (6 to 15 participants per village) to plant tree seeds and carry out nursery after-care activities. Practical sessions were held to discuss planting methods and sapling care, ensuring that participants clearly understood the tasks and agreed on fair remuneration. In collaboration with the trained villagers, 1,868 seedlings were produced across six new nurseries, and an additional 1,200 seedlings were purchased from local nurserymen. In total, 3,068 seedlings were distributed among 10 new villages and successfully transplanted, involving 196 local community members. As the project approaches its conclusion, stakeholders are being encouraged and supported to develop and commit to plans for the continued care of existing young trees and the post-project sowing, transplanting, and after-care of new seedlings. In Zimbabwe, 180 cuttings of Brachystegia spiciformis were prepared in early September 2025, using rooting powder to improve their chances of success. This activity was timed with the sap-rising period in the miombo woodland. Additionally, eight root-shoots were collected experimentally. These efforts aim to replace the seedlings scorched by heat during the previous season.

Regarding output 3, which focuses on poverty and gender equality a synthesis article has been written, submitted, and accepted for publication. In addition, ethnomyecological surveys were conducted to document the contribution of wild edible mushrooms to household food security and income generation in Benin. The survey also documented local communities' perceptions of the sustainability of fungal resources. Furthermore, the project has launched a second round of training for beneficiary communities on mushroom cultivation, aimed at helping them diversify their income sources.

Regarding Output 4 on infrastructure, new equipment was provided to project staff to enhance their operational capacity. As part of the capacity-building activities, the Tropical Mycology Centre trained five undergraduate students and one master's student, and welcomed two new PhD candidates. In addition, the Centre of Excellence organized the MYCOBLITZ Summer Course in Benin from the 3rd to the 20th of June 2025, aimed at promoting applied mycology skills among young scientists. The Centre also conducted a specialized training course titled "Bridging the Gap: Strengthening the Capacity of African Researchers in Molecular Biology and Bioinformatics" from the 12th to the 17th of May 2025. The staff members received training on Protection from Sexual Exploitation, Abuse and Harassment.

2. Give details of any notable problems or unexpected developments/lessons learnt that the project has encountered over the last 6 months. Explain what impact these could have on the project and whether the changes will affect the budget and timetable of project activities.

During this period, the main challenge encountered was related to seedling production. Although the project initially planned to produce all seedlings through community nurseries, some delays occurred due to limited access to quality seeds and variable germination rates. To meet the planting targets on time, additional seedlings were purchased from local nurseries to complement those produced with trained villagers. This adjustment ensured the distribution and transplantation of the required number of seedlings across 10 new villages. The project timeline remained unchanged.

3. Have any of these issues been discussed with NIRAS and if so, have changes been made to the original agreement?
